"Money Talks" on One News Channel...

Even as fuel price shocks raise fears of higher grocery costs, supermarkets say shoppers have stayed calm

Philippine Amalgamated Supermarkets Association President Steven Cua says there was no panic buying over the weekend, with most households sticking to their usual payday grocery runs. Instead of hoarding, Cua advises families to buy only about 15% more than their normal needs â€” enough to prepare, but still leave stocks on shelves for others. | via Money Talks

Interview on 16 March by Cathy Yang in her news program "Money Talks" over One News.
