

AL JAZEERA INTERVIEWS PAGASA REGARDING STATE OF THE ECONOMY

Thursday, 20 July 2017

Qatar-based Al Jazeera visited one of the supermarkets of PAGASA Pres. Steven T. Cua to interview him regarding the state of retail economy on 20 July 2017 just four days short of President Duterte's State of the Nation address in Congress. They wanted to feature in their news how local business people are taking to the rather radical approach of the current administration to solving the perceived ills of society. Of course, STC told it like it is both with the good and the bad; how the President is coping given his campaign promises with unorthodox solutions yet finding difficulty to rid society of age-old menaces. At the same time, unwelcome remarks as well as perceived security problems are hindering foreign tourists from finding the Philippines to be the safe heaven it used to be before the strife in Marawi and the drug issue in the urban centers. Foreign investors are focusing on how the economy is holding up a year into the administration of President Duterte.
